

Having fun

Contributed by James
Wednesday, 16 July 2008

These next few weeks should be really great. A bunch of new things coming out. Avatar the last airbender series should be airing some new episodes this week (hey I like my cartoons). I am also looking forward to seeing the new Batman movie, that to say the least will be one amazing movie, my most favourite hero of all time. With all the E3 news this week, so many new games coming out and to follow that comic con, lost of inspiration for me to sink my teeth into.

I managed to write the outlines for my new Tales from the Daaknite stories which will be worked on by two very talented write friends of mine. I am currently fleshing out the visuals and working on a teaser for it all with some music produced by another great sound artist (yeah I think I will call him that for now) detnator.

Lets see how these things come together in the next few weeks.